

Nicolas Foroglou, MD, PhD is appointed as Professor of Neurosurgery in the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, Greece and is the Chair of Department of Neurosurgery, AHEPA University Hospital.

He has graduated from the same in 1993 and obtained the Diploma of Clinical Neurology (Institute of Neurology, National Hospital for Neurology and Neurosurgery, Queen Square, London, UK) He completed the Neurosurgical Residency Program in the AHEPA University Hospital (1997-2001) and defended his PhD thesis on Recurrent Pituitary Adenomas. After being certified from the National Neurosurgical Examination Board and the European Association of Neurosurgical Societies (EANS) in 2001, he did a research fellowship on neuro-oncology (Brigham & Women Hospital, affiliated hospital to Harvard Medical School, Boston, USA) and a fellowship in Functional Neurosurgery (University Hospital of Lausanne, Switzerland).

He was elected unanimously as Lecturer of Neurosurgery in 2003 at the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, Assistant Professor in 2010, Associated Professor in 2016 and full Professor in 2019. His clinical and research activities are focused on neuro-oncology, brain mapping and epilepsy surgery. He has published more than 60 papers in peer reviewed international journals, authored 15 chapters book and deliver more than 200 international lectures. He has been invited as lecturer in numerous national societies and has been member of the editorial board of "Spinal Cord" and "World Neurosurgery", and chief-editor of the official journal of the Hellenic Neurosurgical Society.

He holds multiple memberships including EANO, EANS, AANS, CNS, Societe de Neurochirurgie de langue francaise, Hellenic Neurosurgical Society. He served as President of the Hellenic Neurosurgical Society [2017-2019] and Treasurer of EANS [2017-2021] and is currently EANS representative in EBC.